

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

DRESSER CONSOLIDATED® AND DRESSER MASONEILAN® EARN ISO 14001 ENVIRONMENTAL MANAGEMENT SYSTEMS CERTIFICATION

Certification demonstrates commitment to reducing environmental impact through responsible and compliant operations

HOUSTON (February 22, 2010) – Dresser Consolidated® and Dresser Masoneilan® today announced they have earned International Standards Organizations (ISO) 14001 accreditation at each of their manufacturing locations worldwide. The divisions also received accreditation at each of their aftermarket centers servicing the Americas and Asia Pacific regions.

ISO 14001 is the world's most recognized standard for establishing and maintaining an effective Environmental Management System (EMS). To obtain this certification, Dresser Consolidated and Dresser Masoneilan demonstrated a commitment to reducing environmental impact through responsible and compliant operations.

"ISO 14001 accreditation validates the focus we have placed on environmental stewardship," said Michael Parker, vice president of environment, health and safety for Dresser Consolidated and Dresser Masoneilan. "We take great pride in this certification and the positive impact it will have on our customers, our employees and the communities in which we do business around the globe."

As part of their efforts to continually strive for improvement and innovation in environmental performance, Dresser Consolidated and Dresser Masoneilan are implementing measurable programs to manage and reduce the impact aspects of their business have on the environment. These programs will be periodically assessed by an independent third party to ensure compliance. The ISO 14001 certification also signifies a commitment to continual improvement within the EMS framework.

Dresser Consolidated and Dresser Masoneilan provide products that enable customers to reduce emissions and associated environment impacts. They also partner with a number of organizations in alternative energy industries to supply customized products, services and diagnostic solutions.
